Steve and Eve Save the Planet

I Can Hear Your Heart Beep

By Paul Shore & Deborah Katz Henriquez

Steve, a "Fishtachio" ice cream-loving polar bear, pairs up with a spunky electric car named Eve to save the planet in their first book, I Can Hear Your Heart Beep.

The dynamic duo will delight young readers with their comical adventures in this stunningly illustrated, uplifting graphic novel series as they spread the superpower of kindness gifted to them by the Northern Lights. While fighting climate change, Steve and Eve are accompanied by a lively cast of Arctic characters and hilariously trailed by Burger the Booger, who attempts to make a snotty mess of our planet heroes.

This ground-breaking series addresses the phenomenon of climate anxiety that many children are experiencing by cultivating hope, joy, adventure, and empowerment.

PRAISE FOR THE BOOK

"Three cheers for the creative team who have brought us such a tasty and colorful snow-cone of a story. This delightful romp will enchant both children and adults."

- Peter Tavernise, Climate Coach, San Jose, CA

"Paul and Deborah use humor and fun to inspire optimism and hope, as their characters tell kids the story of climate change and the world they come of age in."

- Linda Solomon, Founder and Publisher, Canada's National Observer

CULTIVATE HOPE, KINDNESS, AND ADVENTURE DURING THIS ERA OF CLIMATE CHANGE WHILE LAUGHING ALONG WITH LOVABLE PLANET HEROES STEVE & EVE!

Illustrator

Prashant Miranda

Prashant Miranda grew up in Bangalore, studied at the National Institute of Design, India, and moved to Canada in 1999. He designed children's animated shows for TV in Toronto before moving on to pursue his passions as an artist. He spends time in the coastal rainforests on the west coast of Canada now, where he travels and documents his life through his watercolor journals, animates films, teaches visual art, illustrates children's books, and paints murals.

Authors

Paul Shore

Paul Shore is an award-winning author and accomplished business professional and engineer who has always embraced adventure and exploring nature with children. Born and raised in Ottawa, Paul moved to the west coast after graduating from Queen's University and has since worked around the globe in high technology, sport, and healthcare. He has developed electric vehicle teaching resources for elementary schools and sits on the board of Ecology Project International, assisting to bring science-focused habitat conservation programs to students and teachers. Paul's travel memoir, Uncorked, won the 2017 Whistler Independent Book Award for Non-Fiction.

Deborah Katz Henriquez

Deborah Katz Henriquez is a children's author, illustrator, and educator who uses nature as a lens to inspire and illuminate our understanding of the world. Deborah's picture book about nature and diversity, Rare is Everywhere, won the 2018 Vine Award for Children's Literature and was subsequently translated into French, Spanish, and Arabic. Deborah grew up in New York City and studied environmental science at Cornell University before moving to Canada and becoming a nursing professor. In her hometown of Vancouver, she writes, makes art, and lives with her human and canine family.
